'Buck' Jones and Family Get to See Ike While in Florida

MR. AND MRS. JAMES "Buck" Jones and children, Jim and Jill, made a Christmas vacation trip to Miami, Fla., to visit his mother, Mrs. Martha Jones, his brother, Dick Jones, his sister, Jan Jones, and his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pearson.

And there they ran onto Mr. and Mrs. Quinn Stuby of this city, who were vacationing at Miami Beach, and who were down there to see the Orange Bowl football game.

The four decided they would like to see President Eisenhower; so down to Key West they motored.

And out on the lawn they spotted and watched the President; but they didn't have the opportunity of any interviews.

Buck reports his brother, Dick, is on the Miami city police force and that his sister, Jan, is manager of a ladies' ready-to-wear store, "Sybils."

IT WAS SO PRETTY out yesterday that I decided to leave my more confined surroundings and walk in a wider orbit. That took me down on East Poplar street, where the choo-choos cross the tracks and the traffic from the north and south meets the traffic from the east and west.

I saw some cute dolls as I gazed around to see what I could see. A bit ancient they were, but cute.

They were staring at me from inside the window at Mrs. Wirth's antique shop, and their eyes beckoned me inside. There I found out that one beautiful little girl was a hundred years old although her face bore nary a wrinkle. Only her little old-fashioned dress gave her away.

There was another 75 years old. And there were others of antique vintage.

I bet these gals could tell you interesting life stories if they could talk.

IT DIDN'T HAPPEN HERE: A large transport plane was crossing the ocean when it began losing altitude rapidly. The pilot finally went out to the passengers and made the following announcement:

"Ladies and gentlemen, we are rapidly losing altitude and in a few minutes will crash into the sea unless we lighten ship."

"We have already thrown overboard everything possible. If 60 of us are to survive, four people must sacrifice themselves and jump from the ship. Who will volunteer?"

After a pause, an Englishman stepped forward. He opened the door, cried "Long Live the Queen," and jumped.

A Frenchman then went to the door, shouted, "Vive La France," and jumped.

An Irishman stroled to the rear, yelled "Erin Go Bragh," and jumped out.

A tall Texan then arose, grabbed a Mexican sitting next to him, tossed him out the door and shouted: "Remember the Alamo!"

Auto Runs Off Highway

An auto driven by William Mo-field ran off Route 13 last night and the fact that the car was slowed by a mud undoubtedly prevented a bad accident. Sheriff William T. Barrett reported today. The incident happened four miles west of Harrisburg, the car stopping against a concrete abutment, the sheriff stated.

Bring In Good Oil Well Southeast of City

Test is Breuer- Robison's W. R. McCarthy No. 1

Well in Harrisburg Township Labeled Hot Spot of Area

Big news in the Saline county oil picture today was the announcement that a good well had been brought in three miles southeast of Harrisburg in wildcat territory.

Breuer-Robison brought in the well, the W. R. McCarthy No. 1, SW 1/4 NE 1/4, 25-9s-6e (Harrisburg township).

The Robertson Tri-State Oil report calls the well a hot spot in the Tri-State area. The report says:

"Three miles east of Harrisburg and two and a half miles from production, Breuer-Robison is testing Cypress at 2240-50 and 2254-52 in the No. 1 W. R. McCarthy. . . that flowed 200 barrels of oil in eight hours through choke after recovery of fracture oil."

Oil men in the area see a fine new Saline county field as a result of this discovery well. There have been muted reports for the past two or three weeks that Breuer-Robison would have a good well at its McCarthy, that they were withholding information until the producers were ready to give it out.

In the area, most of the leases are held by Breuer-Robison, C. E. O'Neal, John Buchman and the Carter Oil Co.

It also was learned today that the Sun Oil company's Justin Reynolds No. 2 well, NE 1/4 SE 1/4, 26-8s-5e (Brushy township), made a good producer. The well is making 64 barrels of oil an hour from the Aux Vases after fracture.

Sun's Justin Reynolds No. 1 made a well in another formation, the Cypress, which reveals two good pay layers in that area.

During the period ending Jan. 3, the Robertson report reveals, six Saline county tests were abandoned as dry holes. They were:

Wilson No. 1, NW 1/4 SE 1/4, 20-9s-6e, in the Liberty community area of Harrisburg township; Pitts and Bassard's Hedger - Farrell - Cain Community No. 1, NE 1/4 SE 1/4, 14-8s-6e (Raleigh); George and Wraith's Winnie Newcomb No. 1, NW 1/4 SE 1/4, 23-8s-6e; Shure Oil Co.'s Arthur Miller No. 1, NE 1/4 NW 1/4, 23-8s-6e; Athens's Ann Cummings No. 1, SE 1/4 SE 1/4, 36-8s-6e; and L. Democrats Criticize 'Political Overtones' in Eisenhower Message

WASHINGTON (AP)—Middle-of-the-road Democratic leaders, who gave President Eisenhower a friendly hearing for three years, will throw political bricks at him in the campaign year of 1956.

If their attitude has changed toward Mr. Eisenhower, they said, he gave them ample cause in Thursday's State of the Union message to Congress.

"To those of us who have attempted to cooperate with this administration in matters affecting the nation's interest, the political overtones of this message are the subject of deep disappointment and great regret," Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson said.

To Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), the message was "A melody of New Deal platitudes with strong political overtones." Sen. Russell B. Long (D-La.) said the President made "a great number of general suggestions that sound good but do not mean much when you get down to specifics."

W. C. Hendricks, 24, Local Minister- Salesman, is Killed in Auto Crash

Archie Hedgepeth, Eldorado Truck Driver, Also Dead

The auto crash near noon yesterday a mile east of Crossville on U. S. Route 460 took the life of a young Harrisburg minister-salesman and his friend, an Eldorado truck driver.

Killed were William C. Hendricks, 24, pastor of the Church of God of Prophecy in Harrisburg and a salesman for the Singer Sewing Center, and Archie Hedgepeth, 30, of Eldorado.

The auto in which they were riding figured in a collision with one driven by Frank Nelson, 39, of Decatur, Ill., who was taken to Carmi Township hospital suffering a severe head injury and bruises and lacerations.

State Policeman Ben Joe Behler of Carmi, who investigated the accident, said a westbound car containing Hendricks and Hedgepeth ran off the road at a curve, hit a gulley and bounced back on the highway, coming to rest sideways to traffic. He said Nelson, driving an eastbound car, hit the other vehicle broadside.

Inquests at Carmi Monday

Hedgepeth, thrown from the car, was killed instantly. Hendricks died en route to the Carmi hospital. Behler said investigators were unable to tell which was driving.

It was reported that both Hendricks and Hedgepeth suffered severe head injuries and crushed chests.

An inquest into their deaths will be held Monday night by White County Coroner Herman Kittenberger.

Hendricks, whose body was brought to the Harrisburg funeral home, had been here only a few months. He and his wife, the former Jane Wales of Madison, Ill., resided at the Dorrisville Housing development. They had been married only three months.

He was born at Boyle, Miss., Oct. 24, 1931, where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hendricks, reside.

His body will be returned to the Fletcher funeral home at Cleveland, Miss., this afternoon. Funeral services and burial will be in Mississippi.

Hedgepeth Rites Sunday

The Bean and Tanner funeral home in Eldorado announced that the funeral services for Hedgepeth will be held at 2 p. m. Sunday at the Eldorado Church of God. The Rev. G. C. Spencer will officiate and burial will be in Wolf Creek cemetery. The body will lie in state at his home, where he lived with his mother, after 2 p. m. today.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Belle Cowan of Eldorado; four half brothers, Carl Breasheere of Providence, Ky.; Elzy Breasheere of Stonefort, and Delmar and Glenn Hedgepeth of Kansas; and three sisters, Mrs. Mary Monday and Mrs. Florine Stevens of Eldorado and Mrs. Thelma West of Sturgis, Ky.

Several good up-to-date mining movies in color and sound, will be shown.

The effort to prevent accidents and save miners' lives is sponsored by both the miners' union and company officials and the discussions will be led by instructors from the U. S. Bureau of Mines and the State Department of Mines and Minerals. Topics discussed will include accidents caused by mine fires, explosions, falls of roof, electricity and several leading causes.

All employees of this mine, both union and supervisory personnel, are urged to attend.

Grace Kelly and Prince Discuss Wedding Date

Will Be Married After Easter; Expect End to Movie Career

NEW YORK (AP)—Actress Grace Kelly and Prince Ranier III of Monaco make their first public appearance tonight as an engaged couple, but today they secluded themselves in her Fifth Avenue apartment to discuss an important matter — the wedding date.

"Her Grace" and the prince astounded nearly everyone Thursday with the announcement that they will be married sometime after Easter. They drove to Philadelphia for an announcement lunch and returned to Miss Kelly's New York apartment late Thursday night.

Tonight they will appear together at a charity ball aptly named, "A Night in Monte Carlo." The fabulous gambling casino Monte Carlo is located in the half square mile principality ruled by the prince.

The couple will occupy the royal box at the plush social affair held in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf Astoria, accompanied by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Kelly of Philadelphia; socialite Mrs. Lytle Hull and Father Francis Tucker, the prince's personal chaplain.

Miss Kelly's marriage to the handsome prince probably will signal the end of her highly successful movie career, but when the couple can be married depends a lot on the movies.

The icy socialite star is committed to do two more pictures for MGM and one of them, "High Society" with Bing Crosby, will begin production Jan. 17. After the wedding and honeymoon Miss Kelly will return to Hollywood for the second picture, "Designing Woman," with Jimmy Stewart.

Will Live in Monaco

Miss Kelly refused to say outright whether her marriage would end her budding movie career during a news conference at her parents' home Thursday. But she said she "certainly" would live in Monaco.

The blonde actress, who will be the first American woman ever to marry a reigning monarch, will have a dual citizenship after their marriage. She will become a citizen of Monaco by virtue of her marriage to the prince but will retain her U. S. citizenship.

Miss Kelly said she likes "a large family" and royal children will be good news to Monagasques. Under a World War II agreement with France, which surrounds the principality on three sides, Monaco reverts to France if the prince dies without an heir and that would mean such things as taxes and military service.

File Lawsuit in Circuit Court To Set Aside Dr. A. J. Butner Will

A lawsuit involving the estate of the late Dr. A. J. Butner, Harrisburg physician who died March 7, 1955, was on file today in circuit court.

The suit, filed by Mildred S. Butner, his widow, and Mary Elizabeth Butner, their daughter, seeks to set aside the instrument which the suit calls the purported last will and testament of the doctor, and that the probate action in county court also be nullified.

Named defendants in the action, filed for the plaintiffs by the Mt. Vernon law firm, Craig and Craig, are Bonnie Butner Cain and Lavern Gates, named executors of the estate in the instrument, and Bonnie Butner Cain, Blanche Butner Gates, Barbara Butner Berg and W. B. Butner, children of Dr. Butner. Gates is a son-in-law.

Charges in Lawsuit

The lawsuit says that at Dr. Butner's death he owned real and personal property of approximately $50,000, that he left an instrument purporting to be his last will and testament, which was admitted to probate in county court April 8, 1955.

It charges the instrument is not the doctor's will, that it was not signed by any person in his presence or at his direction, was never acknowledged by the doctor to be his act or deed, that it was not attested to or signed by two competent witnesses in his presence.

It charges that at the time of making and executing the instrument, the doctor was of unsound mind and memory and did not have the mental capacity to make a will, that he was more than 77 years old and was enfeebled and ill.

It charges further that at the time of the alleged making of the instrument, he was under the domination and control of Bonnie Butner Cain and Willard Cain, her husband, and of Blanche and Barbara, his daughters.

"By their undue influence this instrument was procured and made," the suit charges, adding "he was induced to make the instrument contrary to his deliberate judgment and reason."

Separate Action Filed

A copy of the instrument admitted to probate as his last will and testament was attached to the action. It reveals that the instrument, made Jan. 22, 1955, and bearing the names of J. O. Wells and George D. Barnes, Harrisburg businessmen, as witnesses, had the following provisions: The widow's award to Mildred S. Butner, an undivided one-third part to Mildred and undivided two-fifteenths parts to Wendell, Bonnie, Blanche, Barbara and Mary Elizabeth, the children. It also designated Bonnie and Blanche's husband, Lavern

Want Economic Assistance, Group Advised

Dr. W. J. Tudor, Goffrey Hughes Also Testify

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Kenneth J. Gray (D-Ill.) urged today that Congress take "drastic action" this session to help relieve unemployment in economically depressed areas.

He testified before the Senate Labor subcommittee that "if federal help is not forthcoming," thousands of additional people will be forced to leave southern Illinois and seek jobs elsewhere.

The congressman said that about 51,000 families already are on public relief in the 15 southern Illinois counties of his district.

Farmers, as well as miners and industrial workers, "are experiencing undue hardships" in the area, Gray said.

He said his constituents "don't want doles or handouts," but must have economic assistance in the form of loans for industry and grants for construction of public works.

Dr. W. J. Tudor of Southern Illinois University attributed the area's economic plight primarily to a decline in coal mining which he said was overemphasized as an industry when demand for the fuel was great.

"Not only do we have poor agriculture, high unemployment, but we also have high public assistance costs, low standards of living, and many other conditions that go along with a depressed economy," he told the subcommittee.

Tudor recommended greater industrial diversification, training of unemployed for new jobs, and public works projects.

Goffrey Hughes, executive director of Southern Illinois Inc., proposed that the inland water barge routes be extended to Mississippi river tributaries in the area to help the coal mining industry. He also suggested a pilot plant for extraction of chemicals from coal and for exploring new uses for coal carbon residue.

"A third suggestion is that you look with a critical eye on the effect on the coal industry by the importation of low grade residual oil," he said.

Hughes also supported Tudor's recommendations and urged that a federal penitentiary be located in southern Illinois.

Heavy Rains, Mud Slides Hit Pacific Area

By United Press

Heavy rains, mud slides, and hurricane force winds spread more havoc through the Pacific Northwest today.

A mud slide demolished a new $20,000 home outside Seattle, Wash., burying a 10-year-old girl. More rains pelted sodden northern California, but a return of killer floods was not expected.

Elsewhere, a cold wave dumped temperatures as much as 38 degrees in Montana and North Dakota and a surge of southern air boosted the mercury to record heights in the Midwest.

The mud slide near Seattle Thursday hit the side of a home in suburban Lake City and rolled through it.

Taxpayers to Receive Aid in Making Returns

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Dist. Revenue Director H. J. White today announced a new plan for aiding taxpayers in filling out their 1955 returns.

White said his office has set up a program of "designated days" on which taxpayers can get help at 52 locations in the district. Extra Internal Revenue Service employees will be available at each location on the days designated as "taxpayer assistance days" for that location.

White said a total of 408 days have been designated for the 52 locations.

The plan is voluntary and taxpayers get help on any day. White said, but on non-designated days they may have to wait in long lines because the extra revenue employees will not be available.

White said 24 locations have been added for the program to the 28 regular district offices.

The locations where taxpayers will be helped are:

Alton, Belleville, Bloomington, Cairo, Centralia, Champaign - Urbana, Danville, Decatur, Du Quoin, East St. Louis, Galesburg, Granite City, Harrisburg, Herrin, Jackson, Litchfield, Macomb, Mattoon, Mount Vernon, Olney, Pekin, Peoria, Quincy, Springfield, Albia, Anna, Beardstown, Canton, Carlinville, Carthage, Clinton, Effingham, Havana, Lawrenceville, Lincoln, McLeansboro, Metropolis, Monmouth, Mount Carmel, Murphysboro, Pans, Paris, Pontiac, Robinson, Shelbyville, Vandalia, Watseka, Carbondale, Fairfield, Newton, West Frankfort and Taylorville.

A World Honors List

Editorial by Bruce Blossat

Author John Steinbeck has come up with an interesting idea. He believes the world ought to establish a kind of Honors List to which men and women of real distinction in all fields of endeavor could be named.

As Steinbeck observes in an article in the Saturday Review, people naturally crave recognition for their labors. But in this complex time the path to it is confused.

In America, the award that most sets a man apart from others is a military one — the Congressional Medal of Honor.

On the world level, only the Nobel prizes reward the highest achievements in science, art and literature. But these awards honor too few, leaving unrecognized hundreds of individuals the world over who have made a significant mark upon the life of this age.

These people would seem to be entitled to enter a new sort of nobility — founded not upon blood or wealth but upon the pre-eminent distinction, service to mankind.

Here's what Steinbeck proposes: "That men or women who have contributed to the general welfare be ennobled for the duration of their lives."

"Men like Dr. Einstein, Dr. Salk, Gen. George C. Marshall, perhaps Bernard Baruch — perhaps a poet or a painter whose work had leaped national boundaries, an engineer whose building had brought water to deserts, a biochemist who has won a war against the virus enemy — these are the men I would enoble, not only as a reward for service rendered, but as a goal for others to shoot at, as an enticement to effort for the world's good."

Steinbeck suggests that a yearly Honors List might be submitted to the U. N. General Assembly, where a unanimous vote would be required to elevate a candidate to the society of distinguished world citizens.

He would invest the members of this honor group with a species of true world citizenship, freeing them and their belongings of all travel restrictions, immigration requirements, and the like.

The practicality of this notion in this century of suspicion may be open to question. There can be little quarrel with Steinbeck's fundamental thought.

Anyone worth his salt in this world wants and deserves recognition. How a "Society of Distinguished Men" should be organized is not important. What is vital is that the servants of mankind enjoy fitting reward for their work while they are alive to appreciate it. Too much recognition is saved for obituaries, tombstones, and the history books.

Communications Interrupted

Complaints are arising in some quarters that President Eisenhower has been inaccessible to the press for several months. Reporters understand the facts of his illness, but they feel nevertheless that the country ought to be getting a fuller picture of his current role in government.

Certain conflicts exist between things the President has said in the past and some of his top officials have said or are saying. The Dixon-Yates matter involves one such difference. Newsmen are puzzled as to where the truth lies.

It seems fairly clear, however, that Mr. Eisenhower is not likely to resume regular press conferences in the near future. They are always a strain, and on occasion can be downright grueling. At this stage of his recovery they would not be good medicine.

Some have suggested the device of submitting written questions for his consideration. Possibly the answer lies in this direction, though if this method is employed it ought to be stressed on both sides that it is temporary. There is no real substitute for open-handed, face-to-face meeting with the President, and nothing should be permitted to interfere permanently with that valued means of providing the public with information.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Pentagon Gives Cold Shoulder To Gary Cooper And Billy Mitchell; Ike's Congressman Goes To Bat For Ike's District; Air Force Seeks Liquor Over State Boundaries By Air.

WASHINGTON. — The armed services have been at each other's throats over everything from helicopters to troop-transport planes, but suddenly they have decided to carry out "unification" in regard to motion pictures.

The Pentagon has decided to give the cold shoulder to Gary Cooper's new picture, "The Court-Martial of Billy Mitchell," because it puts the Air Force in a favorable light compared with the Army and the Navy.

Instead of opening with a big burrah, with a send-off from the Pentagon brass, the picture is opening at an inconspicuous downtown theatre. But, more important, the Navy slashed to ribbons one important part of the fight-over-air-power story.

This was the real history of how the Navy, in trying to promote its lighter-than-air dirigible, the Shenandoah, forced Commander Zachary Lansdowne to go on a flying junket over midwest county fairs despite his protest that he couldn't carry enough fuel to make the trip and avoid approaching storms.

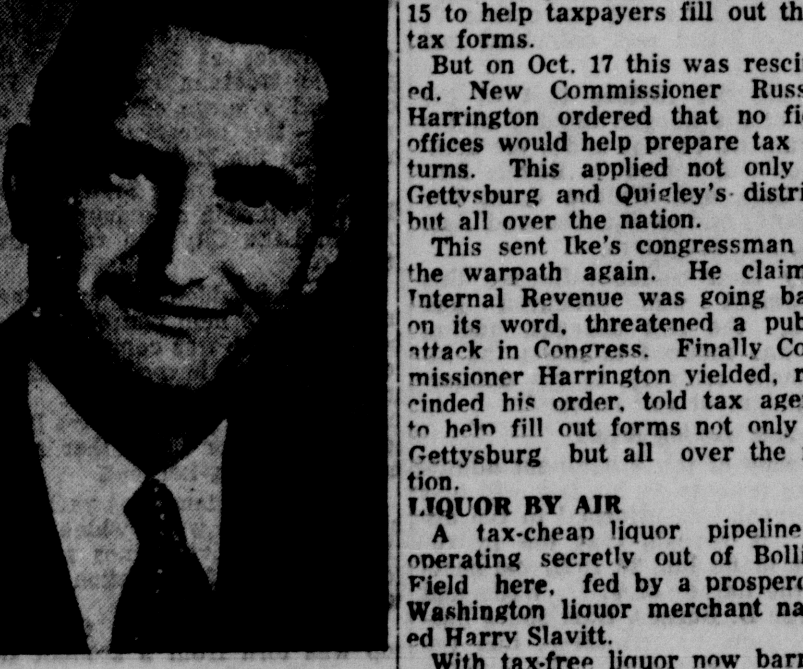

As a result, the Shenandoah crashed in one of the worst air disasters in naval history.

Commander Lansdowne was a close friend of Billy Mitchell. Both were fighting for aerial warfare as against infantry and battleships. But when Milton Sperling, producer of "Court-Martial of Billy Mitchell," asked the Navy where he could locate Lansdowne's widow, the Navy claimed she was dead. Finally he located her in Washington, the present Mrs. Betsey Caswell, and got from her the story of how her late husband, Commander Lansdowne, had written a protest against taking the dirigible on a flight at the request of congressmen to cover a series of county fairs.

SAFE IS RIFLED

The Navy, however, overruled the protest. It was lobbying for

Miss Pauline Shea, Joe Small Wed December 21 at Mt. Moriah Church

Miss Pauline Shea, daughter of Mrs. Eugene Shea, 5 East Gaskins, and Joe Small, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Small of Brushy township, were married Wednesday, Dec. 21, at 6 p. m. at the Mt. Moriah church. By candlelight and in the presence of one hundred and fifty guests, they repeated their vows in a double ring ceremony, performed by Rev. W. L. Cummins, pastor of the First Methodist church of Harrisburg.

Mrs. Ray Ewell, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Miss Lovetta McIntosh, was bridesmaid. Little three year old Linda McConnell, niece of the bride, scattered flower petals in the path of the bride as she came down the aisle on the arm of her uncle, J. D. Potter, who gave her in marriage.

The bridegroom's attendants were Robert Alvey and Lucian Lewis, the latter serving with Donald Price as usher.

Preceding the ceremony the candles were lighted by Miss Aline Dutton and Mrs. Donald Price. Accompanied at the organ by Helen Asbell, Gail Childers, a close friend of the bridegroom, sang "O Promise Me," "Because," and "The Lord's Prayer." The organists also played a medley of love songs as the guests were being seated.

The bride's gown of silk lace, net and brocade, was elegant with heart-shaped peek-a-boo neckline, long pointed sleeves and a full ballerina length skirt. Triple bands of velvet held the illusion veil. Pearls, a gift of the bridegroom, were her only jewelry. She carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums circled in net and tied with scalloped satin streamers to which were attached tiny white bells and tinsel pine needles.

The attendants' gowns of brocade satin were identical except for colors. Mrs. Ewell's was turquoise, and Miss McIntosh's was pink. They were ballerina length with scooped necklines. Each carried pink flowers and wore flowers in their hair.

The bride's mother wore navy crepe with white trim and a black hat. Her corsage was pink carnations. Mrs. Small wore black and purple taffeta with a black hat and a white corsage.

The church was decorated in green, silver and white in keeping with the Yuletide. Cedars touched with snow and pine formed the background. Ropes of pine interspersed with silvered pine cones and white wedding bells draped from the arch above. Baskets of white gladioli and huge chrysanthemums were highlighted by the many burning tapers.

The reception table was covered with a silk damask cloth centered with a tiered cake topped with the traditional bride and groom miniature. Two large decorated candles completed the arrangement above which streamers and bells formed a canopy.

Lena Maynor presided at the punch bowl, Madge Showalter cut the cake and Aline Dutton and Shirley Price served the guests. Mrs. Bedie Harris of Galatia and Mrs. R. C. Penfold of Harrisburg, aunts of the bridegroom, had charge of the gifts, while Mary Margaret Small, sister of the bride, groom, registered the guests.

Following the reception the couple left in a shower of rice for a wedding trip through the South, spending Christmas in New Orleans. They are now at home in a five room cottage on "Small Hill Farm," Galatia RFD 1.

The bride is a native of Harrisburg, a graduate of Harrisburg Township high school and Southern Illinois university. She taught one year at Pinckneyville and two years at Pope County Community grade school.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Galatia Community high school and the University of Illinois where he was a member of "Nabor House," and the honorary fraternities, Gamma Sigma Delta and Alpha Zeta. He spent one year in extension service and is currently associated with his father, John C. Small, in agriculture on "Small Hill Farm."

Attending the wedding other than those of Galatia or Harrisburg were Gail Childers, Atlanta, Ga., Mr. and Mrs. Robert Riegel, Jackson, O., Mr. and Mrs. Howard Edwards, Merom, Ind., Mr. and Mrs. Dee Small, Marion, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Bob Bartle, Pinckneyville, Mrs. J. W. Gaskins, Tucson, Ariz., Mr. and Mrs. Lee Gard, Golconda, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Trovillion, Golconda.

Mrs. Charles E. Boyett Wins Fishing and Flower Prizes

At Fort Pierce, Fla., Mrs. Charles E. Boyett, from Harrisburg, won prizes in two Christmas decoration contests and an anglers prize during the holidays. At a meeting of Community Center members she was awarded a prize for catching a six-pound, 12 ounce Jewfish.

In the Christmas decoration contest she won second prize in the division for trailer homes. Mr. and Mrs. Boyett reside at the M. & A. Trailer court and have spent their winters in Florida since his retirement as a superintendent of the duster plant of the Peabody Coal Co., at Harco.

In a contest sponsored by the Sea Grape Garden circle of Fort Pierce, Mrs. Boyett, a member of the Saline County Garden club, won second place. Her entry was in the contest on "Religions Interpreted in Floral Art." Orchid mums with a pink background, which was a sea fan, with a standing figurine of the madonna, was her arrangement.

Judge Subpenas Newsmen to Teitelbaum Trial

CHICAGO (U)—Federal Judge Joseph Sam Perry today ordered the subpoena of newsmen who write articles about the income tax evasion trial of gangster Al Capone's one-time family lawyer.

Perry said he wants the newsmen to be put on the stand so that they can tell the jury of any "inside information" they may have about the case.

He also demanded that they say whether their articles are based on hearsay.

"The time is coming when we'll have to do something about trying these cases in the newspapers," Perry said.

Perry revealed his plans at the opening Thursday of Abraham Teitelbaum's trial on charges of evading federal income taxes. A short time earlier, a prospective juror was excused because he said he had read newspaper accounts of the case and might be influenced by them.

In several recent Federal Court cases, defense attorneys have demanded mistrials on grounds that pre-trial newspaper stories were prejudicial to their clients.

Testifies Voluntarily
However, Perry's unusual move was the first of its kind on the federal bench here. It was done on his own initiative and not at the demand of government or defense attorneys.

Newsman involved felt the order might raise controversy if an attempt is made to force them to disclose the sources of their articles. Stephen Tooley of the Chicago Tribune was called to testify Thursday and subpoenas were issued for three other reporters—Max Sonderby of the Chicago Sun-Times, Robert Johnston of the Chicago Daily News, and Harry Heydenburg of the Chicago American.

Tooley did not accept service of the subpoena, but testified voluntarily. He said most of his information about the case came from the U. S. attorney's office.

He did not examine legal records and got no information from persons under oath, he said.

U. S. to Stage New H-Bomb Tests in Pacific

President Says Nation Will Not Be Duped by Propaganda

WASHINGTON (U)—Look for an official announcement soon that the United States will stage new H-bomb tests in the Pacific this year. President Eisenhower made it clear Thursday that this country will not be duped by foreign propaganda in calling the tests off.

Atomic sources saw in his State of the Union message assurance that the United States will continue to perfect nuclear weapons for defense of the free world.

A congressional authority said the new tests will be held this spring at the Eniwetok-Bikini proving ground in the Marshall Islands. The last tests there, in the spring of 1954, were of "super H-bombs" comparable in violence to 15 million or 20 million tons of TNT.

"This year," the congressional authority said, "we are thinking in terms of 40 million to 50 million tons."

Message Mentions Atom
In Thursday's message Mr. Eisenhower mentioned the atom in 10 different paragraphs. Five of the references were to peacetime uses.

The President spoke of U. S. efforts "to harness the atom for the betterment of mankind." He said "nuclear war would be an intolerable disaster." And he added that this country will keep trying to get Russia to accept a verifiable system of arms control.

But he also noted that Soviet leaders so far have refused "to create the indispensable conditions" for a secure peace. That being the case, the United States is beefing up its power to deter or repulse aggression by "making operational new weapons and by integrating the latest scientific developments, including new atomic weapons, into our military plans." You can't do any of that without field experiments to prove the fruits of research.

Others Oppose Tests
So the 1956 tests will go on as scheduled—despite political pressure from the Communist world, from India, and from British Laborite circles for an East-West agreement to ban further H-bomb development.

Preparation for this year's tests have been under way a long time. The test organization, Joint Task Force Seven, is a semi-permanent agency.

President Eisenhower is understood to have given his final okay for this year's tests to AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss shortly before his pre-Christmas return from Gettysburg.

$1,250,000,000 School Building Program to Be Sent To Congress Next Week

WASHINGTON (U)—The administration will send Congress a $1,250,000,000 school building program next week, congressional sources said today.

The money would be given to the states on a matching basis during the next five years.

The school building program will be included in a special message to Congress from Marion B. Folsom, secretary of health, education and welfare, the sources said.

The program is certain to cause an inter-party fight with both the Republicans and the Democrats scrambling to get election year credit for aid to schools.

A Democratic-sponsored bill already pending in the House calls for a $1,600,000,000 school aid program spread over only four years. Speaker Sam Rayburn has given the bill top early priority.

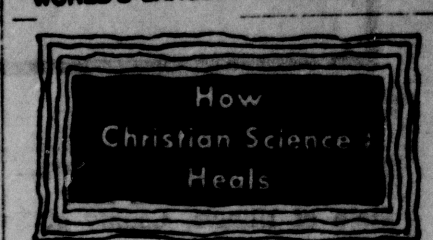

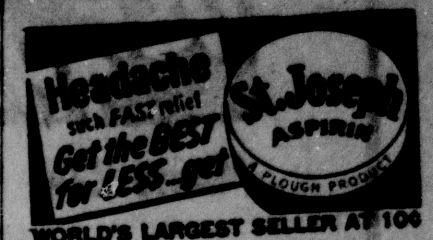

An administration school aid program submitted to Congress last year placed emphasis on loans rather than grants. But it got the cold shoulder from Democratic leaders in both houses. Informed sources said Folsom urged the Republican leadership to sponsor a more liberal grant program after the recent White House Conference on Education. The national conference voted 2-to-1 in favor of prompt federal aid to help the schools meet their grave education problems.

The Education Department has estimated the nation currently needs 370,000 new classrooms. The Department predicts that at the current birth rate the shortage will triple in five years.

President Eisenhower in his State of the Union message urged Congress to "move promptly" to help rescue overburdened school systems.

Better animals, better care. More feeding and improved beef types account for a 25 per cent increase in cattle productivity in the United States since 1925.

Card of Thanks

MITCHELL—We cannot adequately thank our neighbors and friends for their graciousness during the illness and death of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. Clara Mitchell. To thank you enough is beyond our ability. The consoling words of Rev. Raymond Beck, floral offerings, and service of the pallbearers, and men of the Turner funeral home, make us humbly grateful. These kindnesses shall never be forgotten.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Herman Owen who departed this life one year ago.
If all the world were ours to give, We would give it, yes and more, To see your smiling face again, Come shining through the door. Sometimes it is hard to understand Why some things have to be. But God in His wisdom has planned Beyond our strength to bear it, And courage to meet the blow But what it meant to lose you This world will never know. Sadly missed by wife, Mable, and children. *160-1

Senate Committee

To Question Top

Defense Leaders

WASHINGTON—Chairman Richard B. Russell announced today top defense leaders will be summoned before the Senate Armed Services Committee next week for secret questioning on who is ahead in the fateful race for development of an intercontinental missile.

The Georgia Democrat said he personally has "some concern" that the United States may not be maintaining its lead over Russia in development of the ICBM—often called "the ultimate weapon of the future."

Russell said Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson and other top defense officials also will be given a "general examination" on United States defenses.

The House Armed Services Committee decided Thursday to make a sweeping inquiry to determine "whether any other country is ahead of us" in missile development.

Slatemakers

Query Lucas,

Gray, Stengel

CHICAGO—Three downstate Democrats told party leaders today they want to run for U. S. senator.

A Democratic slatemaking committee interviewed former Sen. Scott W. Lucas, Havana; State Sen. James W. Gray, East St. Louis, and State Rep. Richard J. Stengel, Rock Island.

Lucas, whose candidacy has aroused some opposition from organized labor, was interviewed for almost an hour. Gray and Stengel spent only about 10 minutes each before the committee.

The slatemakers are questioning a series of Democrats who would like berths on the party's 1956 state ticket. A decision on whether to endorse a slate is expected early next week.

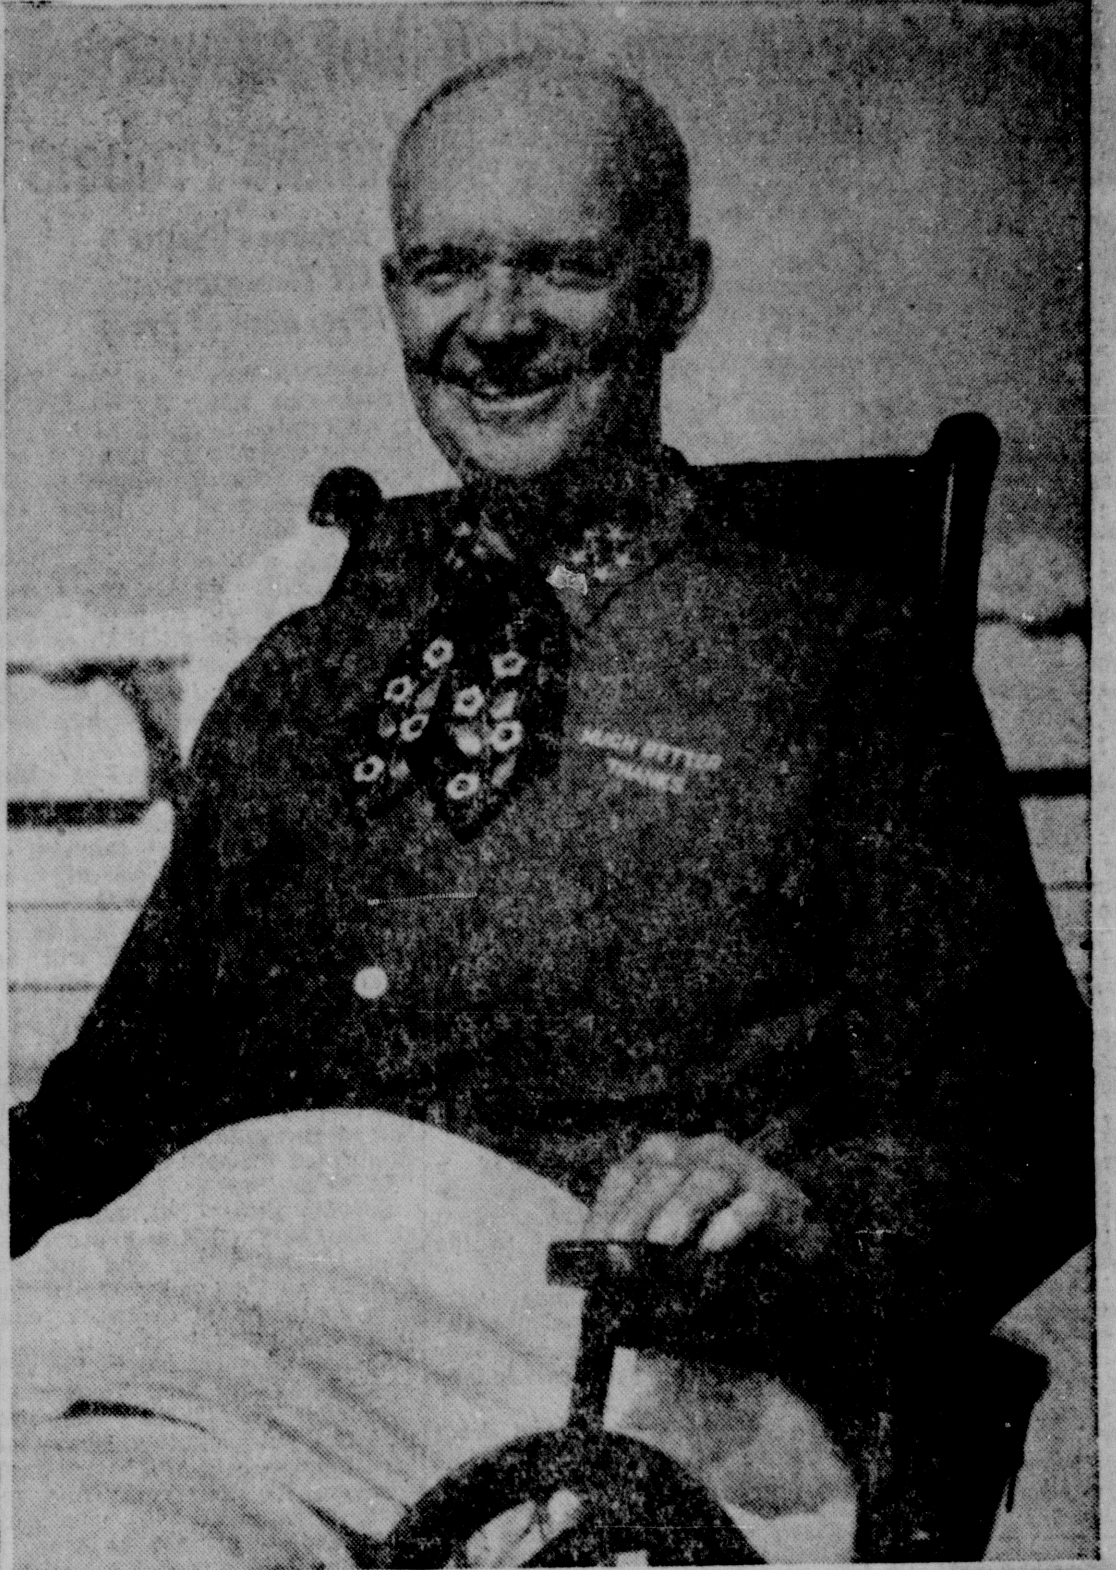

Labor Against Lucas
Lucas told reporters that the question of labor objections to his candidacy did not come up in the closed meeting and "I tried to answer that the best I possibly could."

Representatives of the Labor League for Political Education, an AFL group, told the slatemakers this week they could not support Lucas because he voted for passage of the Taft-Hartley Act

Eisenhower and Benson Complete Farm Message

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—President Eisenhower and his agriculture secretary today put into "virtually final form" the administration's new farm program which includes a "soil bank" plan for alleviating the problem of farm surpluses.

The nation's chief executive met for approximately two hours at his vacation headquarters here with Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson who flew down from Washington Thursday night.

Also attending the closed session were Economic Advisor Gabriel Hauge, Undersecretary of Agriculture True Morse and Presidential Aide Fred Seaton.

The President's special farm message goes to Congress Monday, on the heels of his State of the Union message which described the nation's economy as flourishing but acknowledged "that the farmers are suffering."

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said after today's conference that the farm message was "put into virtually final form" and that it will be read to Congress at noon on Monday.

Before the conference in the chief executive's office on the naval base here, the President met briefly with Hagerty and Seaton to take care of routine work.

Hagerty announced the President signed two executive orders implementing the provisions of 1955 amendments to the Armed Forces Reserve Act passed in 1952.

Under the provisions, men in critical skills become eligible to serve three to six months of the required two years on active duty and then are transferred to the "ready" reserve. The President plans to end his Key West vacation probably Sunday afternoon.

Woman Accused of Abandoning Girl, 9, On Chicago Streets

CHICAGO (AP)—Police today held a young woman accused of taking a 9-year-old girl from New York to Chicago on a hitch-hiking trip and turning her loose to beg in the streets on Christmas Eve.

The woman, 25-year-old Mrs. Helen Jane Carter, was quoted as saying she took little Anna Wolf on the trip "because she liked me and I liked her."

However, Anna told police that Mrs. Carter abandoned her with the words, "A children's organization will take care of you."

The girl has been re-united with her mother, Mrs. Dorothy Buckley of Jamaica, N. Y.

Mrs. Carter was arrested Thursday in a tavern not far from the Near North Side street where Anna was found asking passersby for coins on Christmas Eve. Police said she will be returned to New York on a kidnapping warrant.

Unmarked State Police Cars in Use

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—State Police Chief Phil M. Brown today reported unmarked state police cars have been placed in service on Illinois highways.

Brown said there have been 19 vari-colored squad cars, identified only by the "M" license plates issued for all state-owned vehicles, in service since the New Year's weekend.

He said another nine unmarked cars will be placed on patrol duty as soon as they are delivered. Brown said two would be used in each of the 14 police districts.

Seek Clues in Execution Slaying Of Airman, Girl, 16

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP)—Air Force and civilian police grilled servicemen at Malmstrom Air Force Base today for clues to the "Chinese execution" slaying of an airman and his teen-age sweetheart.

The bodies of Airman 2.C. Lloyd Duane Bogle and his fiancée, Pat Kalitske, 16, were found in a lonely lovers lane last Monday. Both had been shot through the back of the head.

Bogle's body was found face down in front of his car. His hands were tied behind him with his own belt. He was apparently shot while he was kneeling.

His fiancée's body was found at the bottom of an embankment where it was believed she toppled after the "execution." Her hands were untied. Preliminary evidence indicated she had not been molested.

Bill Russia for $725,000 for Downed Plane

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is demanding that Russia pay $725,000 for destroying a U. S. Navy plane last June.

Administration officials said a diplomatic note billing the Russians for approximately that amount will be delivered to the Soviet embassy today.

The Navy Neptune plane, with 11 crewmen aboard, was attacked by Soviet jet fighters June 22 over the Bering Sea between Alaska and Siberia.

The big plane was forced down in flames after being fired on by the Soviets. No American lives were lost. But 7 of the 11 Navy airmen were injured, some seriously.

Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov was in San Francisco at the time of the incident and expressed regret that it occurred. He said Russia would pay half the damages but denied that Soviet planes caused the incident. He also insisted the U. S. plane was over Soviet waters.

The United States told Moscow on July 7 that the plane had not been over Soviet waters. The United States also said the American plane at no time fired on the attacking Soviet plane which opened fire without warning. But the United States accepted Molotov's proposal to pay for half of the damages.

The U. S. bill of about $725,000 included compensation for the injured personnel in addition to the loss of the plane. Thus the overall cost of the incident was approximately $1,450,000 before it was split 50-50.

Wakeland Granted Sick Leave by SIU

CARBONDALE, Ill. — Floyd Wakeland, associate professor of Music at Southern Illinois university and director of the school's choral groups, has been granted a sick leave of two months on the advice of a physician.

Wakeland, who has long supervised SIU's high school choral clinics and the Spring Music Festival, said he will spend the leave "quieting down" in Florida and New Orleans. He said high blood pressure forced the brief layoff.

Wakeland will return to the campus during the first week of March, in time to manage SIU's "Music Under the Stars" Spring Festival arrangements. Over 2,500 Southern Illinois high school and elementary musicians will participate in the annual extravaganza.

Newsman Will Not Answer Senate Probers

Accuses Group Of Threatening Freedom of Press

WASHINGTON (AP)—New York Times copy editor Robert Shelton today refused to tell Senate investigators whether he is a Communist. He accused them of threatening freedom of the press and invading his rights.

Shelton, who said he has been a copy editor for 1½ years and previously served as a copy reader, did not invoke the Fifth Amendment when Counsel J. G. Sourwine of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee asked if he is a Communist.

Instead, Shelton read a long statement which said he is a loyal American but added: "This subcommittee is nudging the end of my copy pencil, it is pecking over my shoulder as I work."

"This subcommittee is endangering the fear that soon it will be looking into news rooms all over the country," he said.

In refusing to state whether he is a Communist, Shelton invoked the First Amendment, which guarantees press freedom, and challenged the authority of the subcommittee to question him.

"No Newspaper Is Immune" Subcommittee Chairman James O. Eastland (D-Miss.) overruled Shelton's objections and ordered him to answer under the threat of a contempt of Congress citation. Shelton still refused.

Shelton appeared before the subcommittee after Sen. Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (D-Mo.) objected that the subcommittee serves no useful purpose in "embarrassing" witnesses like New York Times reporter Clayton Knowles, who testified Wednesday that he was a Communist on another newspaper from 1937 to 1939.

In advance of today's session Eastland insisted the inquiry is aimed at no publication in particular but that "no newspaper is immune." He has said he is only investigating the general problem of Communist on another newspaper profession.

A newsman asked Eastland whether the fact that Thursday's witnesses included employees of the New York Daily News and New York Daily Mirror tended to show that the investigation was not confined to one newspaper.

Eastland agreed and said, "No newspaper is immune."

The New York Times charged in an editorial Thursday that it had been "singled out" for attack by the subcommittee because of its editorial policies.

Eastland also said the subcommittee is holding closed-door hearings on another phase of the investigation, which he said "will not be confined to New York."

William A. Price, reporter for the New York Daily News, defied Eastland's repeated threats of a contempt of Congress citation on Thursday and refused to say whether he is a Communist. He did not invoke the Fifth Amendment but challenged the subcommittee's right to question his "political and religious beliefs."

News Fires Reporter

The Daily News promptly fired Price. Executive Editor Richard Clarke said in a telegram to the newsman "your conduct as a witness before the Senate Internal Security subcommittee . . . has destroyed your usefulness to the News."

Amnesia Victim, Bride to Fly Home to Colorado

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Ronald Evenson, 27, and his pretty bride prepared to fly home to Colorado today, both at a loss to account for an attack of amnesia that blotted out the memory of his romance and marriage.

Evenson and his bride, Delora Lee, 24, left Placerville, Calif., Sanitarium Thursday and drove their rented car back to San Francisco. After spending the night here, they planned to leave for Denver.

Evenson, a senior at the Colorado School of Mines, vanished from their honeymoon suite at San Francisco's Fairmont Hotel early Monday. He was found Tuesday night lying on a snow-covered mountain highway near Placerville.

For many hours, he was unable to remember who he was. He failed to recognize his bride when she went to his bedside. Finally, Dr. L. E. Shortes gave him a shot of "truth serum," which gradually brought back his memory.

Stratton To Announce Tonight

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Gov. William G. Stratton today departed for his home town of Morris, where he is expected to make his announcement tonight that he will run for a second term.

The governor already has said every way but officially that he will seek re-election.

The announcement of the governor's 1956 political plans tonight will be made at the Morris High School amid gala political fanfare. All other elected state officials, except State Treasurer Warren E. Wright who may oppose Stratton in the Republican primary, are expected to be on hand.

"I've been a sailor," Kauai said. "The missionaries over on Man-gaia, I worked in their schooner." Mr. Bothwick had sensed the land and he blinked out of his torpor at Kauai. Then he fumbled to rise and made it and grinned and put his fingers to his forehead in vague salute. "I thank you, sir," he said, "for all of us."

Alfy was conscious, also Mr. Finnie. Some of the men on the main deck stirred, their instincts telling them that land was close. Kauai gazed at Bothwick obliquely, as if with embarrassment. "You come from the sea," he said. "You need help. We'd expect the same from you, come our turn."

"Get a man to the wheel, Mr. Bothwick," Naish said hard-voiced. He had the sudden, inexplicable desire to make known to Kauai that this was his ship, that he still commanded her. "Now, Kauai, show me how you'll take her in."

The other islanders came aboard and they were all strong and fit and sailorly in their actions. Naish had the realization that here was a peculiar form of mockery. For when Kauai gave his orders, two, sometimes only one of the islanders went to the lines at which seven and eight of the crew had worked frantically and failed. Sails were trimmed, yards braced with an ease that after the days that had gone since the Cape Horn passage were very much like magic. Then hawsers were sent to the canoes forward of the bow.

The canoe paddlers set stroke together at Kauai's cry. A pale shiver went along beside the outriggers as the paddles drew forth. The canoes moved, and the ship.

Naish clung to the rail with both hands. He wanted to see his ship towed safely to her anchorage. But the bronze-skinned men on deck had fruit brought aboard in coir baskets that had just come out in other canoes from the atoll. Kauai handed him a coconut, the top pierced and opened. He drank fresh coconut milk and his wobbly teeth chunked into the soft whiteness of the kernel. He was ravished, lost; he could no longer think of anything except satisfaction of his hunger.

Naish's desire was to remain withdrawn even from his ship-mates until he could once more establish his sense of self. He had from the first day refused to look at the ship at her anchorage. Time, time to think uninterrupted was his acute need. When the men passed him, going back and forth along the atoll or to the beach or the lagoon, he offered only a short nod of greeting. It had been sufficient in his present state to make arrangements for them through Kauai, the English-speaking native who had piloted the ship.

The greenies, Purdy, Post, Beedle, Jaeger, Cram, Alfy and Morrow, bunched together in a palm log and thatch shelter. Larned had quietly refused to share it with them; he was the one surviving petty officer, and built a shelter for himself between that of the greenies and the house Mr. Finnie and Mr. Bothwick occupied. By the second week Mr. Finnie discovered a widow and moved into her house, and Mr. Bothwick lived on alone.

His men were safe, speedily regaining their health, and with the exception of Mr. Finnie had committed no action that might draw the anger of the peaceful, hospitable natives.

He found that he watched the children at their play, and he learned that Pere-hau was tag, pere-parie, prisoners' base. He got to know the names of the children as their mothers called them.

At night, he waited for the little coco oil lamps to be lit at the tombs of the dead. He afterwards shut his eyes and with a humility new to him prayed for the men lost from his ship. It was fitting that he did so, he told himself; they were owed that by him. Yet when his prayers were finished he was glad that the story-telling, the dancing and the singing had begun on the beach.

Men, women, children gathered closely while the stories were told, usually by Mata'ora, the old chief. Naish had picked up the meanings of a number of words. The tupu-pau were ghostly spirits, and he understood why the children clutched their mothers' hands. The chief in his deep voice went on to tell of Fenua Ro'atua, The Land Very Far Away, of Moana Farers, The Unfathomable Sea, and of deeds and voyages and happenings of which Naish had knowledge but which made the children dig their toes into the smooth sand.

The children were sent to bed when the drum was carried to the beach. A resonance came forth that had the same basic rhythm as the rollers on the reef. But that rapidly changed, was quicker and more insistent, then, suddenly, a whisper and a murmur.

It was as if the night had taken up the beating, or that the sea returned it. The older, fatter women panted, they squatted down and grinned. Albemarle Morrow, who danced every night since he had recouped his strength, talked with them merrily in their language. Alfy, his angular body slick with sweat, had left the firelight. He came back with a fresh garland of hibiscus for a young girl whose mother had argued about her presence among the dancers.

Naish let go a prolonged breath. There was no way to reckon it, he told himself. Each man was different in his fashion.

1956 Buick CENTURY 6-Passenger, 4-Door Riviera, Model 63

(There's double-action take-off in Buick's new Variable Pitch Dynaflow!*)

WE HAVE a new thrill waiting for you behind the wheel of a '56 Buick with today's Variable Pitch Dynaflow.

It comes from something the engineers call "double regeneration"—which is another way of saying double-action take-off.

It's a nimble and instant new getaway response you get at an easy nudge on the gas pedal—

Because Buick engineers have now found a way to make Dynaflow's whirling oil add to its own velocity at the very beginning of pedal travel—to turn up higher torque faster right from a standing start.

Know what that means?

It means you now have a brilliant new nimbleness for city and traffic driving at only part throttle.

It means you now have an instant and solid take-off in your cruising range—even before you switch the pitch of this airplane-principled transmission.

It means you now have better gas mileage than ever before—because you get this snappy new sizzle within the first inch of pedal travel, where you do all your normal driving.

And it means you still have, in reserve, the full-power acceleration of Dynaflow's switch-pitch action when you floor the pedal for an emergency safety-surge.

You really ought to try this new excitement—and all that goes with it—

Like the great new ride—and the sensible new safety features—and the prideful feeling of Buick's new sweep-ahead styling—and the record-high power and compression of big new 322-cubic-inch V8 engines.

So come in and let one of these beautiful new '56 Buicks tell you the story in the way it knows best—on the road, under power, lancing curves, humbling hills. Can you make it this week?

*New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflow is the only Dynaflow Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century—optional at modest extra cost on the Special.

Doak Walker Little Interested in SMU Coaching Post

HONOLULU (AP) — Doak Walker said today he will "talk" to Southern Methodist University officials who say they want him as their backfield coach.

But Walker, in town for the Hula Bowl game, didn't seem enthusiastic about the offer. He repeated what he had said earlier: "That after the Hula Bowl and later the Pro Bowl game, he is 'through with football.'"

"I have too many good friends ever to try my hand at coaching," Walker, a former Southern Methodist All-America and later Detroit Lions halfback, said when a newsman asked him about the SMU offer.

SMU Athletic Director Matty Bell said Walker will be offered the job vacated Wednesday night by Harold (Bo) Hagan, who resigned to join the Rice Institute coaching staff.

Big Time Boxing Dead in N. York By Ban on Guild

NEW YORK (AP) — Big-time boxing was virtually dead in New York state today, and the great question was, "where can the ghost be shifted?"

The N. Y. sport was finished for an indefinite period Thursday night effective Jan. 15 when the Boxing Guild of New York voted formal defiance of the N. Y. State Athletic Commission's ban against the Guild.

Under the commission's ban, no fight-manager can be active in the state and retain membership in the Guild. But the members voted unanimously to remain in the Guild even though it meant shifting their fighters to other states.

But the proposed shift to other areas ran into a snag Thursday night in the person of Gov. Theodore McKeldin of Maryland, and the possibility loomed that other governors might follow McKeldin's lead.

He questioned the advisability of welcoming to Maryland fights that were banned in N. Y. state. He raised the question after Chairman Julius Helfand of the New York commission had blasted the Maryland commission for permitting promoter Tex Sullivan to arrange to move his Monday night TV fights from St. Nicholas Arena, N. Y., to the Baltimore Coliseum, starting Jan. 23 — or possibly Jan. 16.

Meanwhile, Madison Square Garden Promoter Jim Norris of the International Boxing Club was expected to announce plans before midnight for moving his Friday night TV-radio fights from New York state to other states. He flew in from Miami Thursday night.

Production of Minerals in State During 1955 Totals $568 Million

URBANA, Ill. — Illinois production of raw minerals in 1955 broke all previous records with an estimated value of $568 million dollars, according to the State Geological Survey division of the Department of Registration and Education. The previous record production was in 1948 when Illinois produced raw minerals valued at $567 million dollars.

The 1955 total tops the half-billion mark for the sixth consecutive year. Although figures are not yet available, Illinois will probably continue to hold seventh place among the nation's mineral producing states.

The increase of more than 60 million dollars over the value of 1954 production represents increases among all of Illinois' widely diversified mineral industries, indicating that the improved economic stability is well distributed.

Oil Tops Coal
As usual, the mineral fuels — coal and oil — account for the biggest share, more than two-thirds of the total, with coal contributing 30 per cent and oil 40 per cent.

For Illinois this is the second year that the value of oil has been greater than that of coal. Oil increased from a value of about 200 million dollars in 1954 to about 236 million dollars in 1955. The big increase is due partly to discovery of new oil pools, and even more substantially to the oil operators' growing use of hydraulic fracturing and secondary recovery methods.

Production of Coal Up
Coal production has turned upward again after several years of downward trend, increasing in value from 163 million dollars in 1954 to 180 million dollars in 1955. The railroad market, which formerly took about 25 percent of all coal produced, is greatly reduced because many of the railroads have converted from steam to diesel locomotives. Decline of the railroad market has been partly offset by increase in general manufacturing, such as steel and autos, and also by a steady increase in demand for coal by the power stations which burn coal in order to raise steam to generate electricity. The long-range plan to meet increasing demands for electricity promises a steadily growing market for the coal industry.

Illinois is fourth in coal production, exceeded only by West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and Kentucky, in that order.

A busy year for the construction industries shows up in the value of raw materials that go into buildings — stone, cement, lime, structural sand and gravel. Their value accounted for between two and three million dollars of the total gain.

Demand for Special Sands
Clay products valued at 49 million dollars also accounted for another two million dollars of the increased value of raw materials. Clay products include such items as face brick, common brick, sewer pipe, flue pipe, drain tile and building tile, bathroom fixtures (vitreous plumbing fixtures), glazed tile and electrical porcelain.

The metallurgical industries continued a brisk demand for various forms of special heat-resistant fire brick and silica brick.

The special sands, such as silica sand and natural bonded molding sand, were also in increased demand. Silica sand, which is the backbone of an extensive glass industry, is now put to use by the oil industry in hydraulic fracture treatment of the oil-bearing rocks. Both silica sand and natural bonded molding sands go into molds for making metal castings, such as the cylinder heads for automobile engines.

Fluorspar and metals, which had fallen off in value to less than 10 million dollars in 1954, are again in demand so that the value climbed to 11½ million dollars in 1955. Fluorspar still meets competition from foreign mines, but the increased demand from the manufacturers of hydrofluoric acid and from the steel industry has brought a number of Illinois mines back into production.

The estimates of mineral production for Illinois indicate that 1955 is one of the most productive years on record. Other high years, in addition to 1948 when the value was $677 million dollars, are 1951 with a value of $433 million dollars and 1950 with a value of $339 million dollars.

Estimates For Year
The estimates are based on the raw minerals or the first marketable products. They represent values at the mines, wells, pits and quarries and do not take into account the value added by further refining, processing, manufacturing or transporting.

Following are the estimates for 1955:
Coal, $180,000,000.
Crude oil, $236,000,000.
Gas, natural gasoline and liquefied petroleum gas, $14,000,000.
Stone and stone products: limestone, dolomite, cement and lime, $53,800,000.
Clay and clay products, $49,000,000.
Sand and gravel: structural or common sand and gravel and also special sands such as silica sand and natural bonded molding sand, $23,700,000.
Fluorspar and metals (zinc, lead, and silver), $11,500,000.
Total, $568,000,000.
